

RESPONSIBLE CONDUCT IN RESEARCH TRAINING CERTIFICATION

Claremont McKenna College requires that all Principal Investigators, undergraduates (whether receiving wages or working as a volunteer, whether earning academic credit or not), graduate students, postdoctoral researchers and other collaborators participating in any NSF, NIH or other federally funded grant activity complete responsible conduct in research (RCR) training as required by the granting agency.

To certify that RCR training has been completed and that the funded Principal Investigator is providing ongoing mentoring in responsible and ethical research practices, please complete the form below.

Students, postdoctoral researchers, and other research participants:

In order to comply with Claremont McKenna College's RCR requirement, I hereby certify that I have completed responsible conduct of research training.

Name: _____ Signature: _____ Date: _____

Principal Investigator:

I hereby certify that the above-named individual is a researcher in my laboratory, and that he/she has completed RCR training. I further certify that I will provide ongoing mentoring to this individual including guidance on issues such as authorship and publication practices, peer review, stewardship of data, lab procedures, conflicts of interest, and IRB issues.
